Bath Salts and Synthetic Marijuana have become the focus of popular media in recent months and a source of growing concern for teachers, parents, healthcare providers and law enforcement officials. It is important to sort out fact from fiction when it comes to these very dangerous "Designer Drugs". New drugs and new variations of these substances are being created almost daily as the producers aim to stay one step ahead of law enforcement and legislation. In this workshop, we will explore:

- How these substances affect the body both long & short-term
- What do they look like? How are they packaged?
- How to recognize someone under the influence of these drugs
- Legality & availability of these substances
